The investigation into the mysterious death of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron, wife of Dr. Cary A. Barron who is in the Henry County jail charged with poisoning her, approached its climax in Atlanta Tuesday as the analysis of the contents of her stomach neared completion.

Dr. Edgar Everhart, of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, who is conducting the chemical examination, announced that he probably would complete his work by Wednesday forenoon. On the result of Dr. Everhart's analysis the fate of the accused man likely will rest. If traces of poison are found, it will be proof positive in the minds of the dead woman's relatives that her husband is her murderer and they will press his prosecution with all possible vigor.

Dr. Everhart said any report that he had or had not found poison was pure gossip.

Dr. Everhart will make his report directly to Dr. T. H. Maddox, one of the relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron. It was Dr. Maddox and Dr. Hunkley, of Milner, who hastened to Atlanta with the stomach and other vital organs as soon as the body had been exhumed.

By a Staff Correspondent.

GRiffin, Oct. 14.—Dr. J. M. F. Barron, a distinguished physician of this section and father of Dr. Cary A. Barron, in jail in McDonough, charged with poisoning his first wife that he might wed Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, Tuesday morning gave a statement to the Georgia defending his accused son, but at the same time dramatically declaring that should he become convinced that the boy is guilty he would not turn his hand nor spend one penny to prevent the law taking its course. The elder Dr. Barron treated Mrs. Barron in her last illness and diagnosed her ailments as entirely natural.

Dr. Barron is one of the wealthiest and most widely known and highly respected citizens of Pike County, and the first public announcement of his attitude in the poison mystery has brought forth many expressions of admiration and sympathy not only from the community generally, but from the close relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron.

In the event the accused is shown to be guilty, however, he must fight alone the battle for his life. He can not depend on the Barron fortune to save him.

When seen at his home Dr. Barron seemed crushed by the arrest of his son and the accusation against him.

As he asserted his firm belief that his son was wrongfully accused and declared he could not conceive of a Barron being capable of committing such a crime, tears welled in the old man's eyes and there was a tremor of emotion in his voice.

Prepared to Fight for Son. "It is impossible for me to believe my boy guilty of such a crime as is charged to him," said Mr. Barron. "I know no man so unjustly accused. Knowing him as I do and realizing that he is a Barron, I couldn't think otherwise. I can't conceive of a boy of his blood and his training stooping so low as to commit a crime and cheat the life of his own wife, the woman who bore him four perfect children."

"Feeling this way, I naturally fight by his side through this affair, just as he would save him and clear the family name which before never has been blemished. I will spend every penny I have in this world to save him, but I wish this understood—should the evidence be so conclusive as to convince me that he committed this crime then I'll wash my hands of him."

"That may be hard to say," said I.

HAWTHORNE EXPOSES PRISON HORROR

Novelist, Free, Calls Atlanta Penitentiary 'Living Hell'

RYAN DID GIVE TO WILSON FUND

Underwood? Has Fact Expunged
From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(Geor. W. Underwood's charge that Thomas Fortune Ryan contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of President Wilson when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in The Congressional Record to-day. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Ryan had contributed nothing from Mr. Ryan's fund.

Notwithstanding the denial issued from the White House, The Georgian learned from one of its men chiefly instrumental in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Fortune Ryan did contribute $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution from Ryan. The name source is also acknowledged that James Smith, Jr., formerly United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was the undisputed "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, contributed in the neighborhood of $10,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long-distance telephone James Smith was at his home in Elberon, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered. When a representative of The Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said:

"This is Colonel Harvey speaking. Questioned as to whether Mr. Ryan did or did not give $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial fund, he answered, 'I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight.'"

Interest in Row.

President Wilson's break with Senator Smith over the New Jersey Senatorial contest in 1911, when Martin was elected, led to the overthrow of Smith as the State leader.

Intense interest was created in Congress by the debate between Representative Hobson and Congressman Underwood over charges brought by the former that Wall Street and the liquor interests were generous contributors to Underwood's campaign for the Presidential nomination.

Excerpts from remarks made by both Hobson and Underwood are here reprinted from The Congressional Record:

Mr. Hobson, rising to a question of personal privilege, referring to his speech at Wetumpka, Ala., said:

"Mr. Speaker, in the late stages of the preliminary campaign for choosing delegates to the Baltimore convention, Mr. Bryan, editor of The Commonwealth, in his issue of May 10, 1912, under the heading 'The

Boy Under Legal Age, Hurt in Mill, Gets Big Damages

A judgment of $2,000 for the loss of a finger by an 11-year-old boy while employed in a cotton mill was affirmed by the Supreme Court Wednesday morning. The defendant is the Elm Cotton Mill Company, of Whitfield County, and the plaintiff is Charlie Grant.

The decision is important, touching upon the child labor proposition. It was shown that the boy was under the legal age of 15. The company admitted knowing this.

"There can be no defense on the grounds of contributory negligence on the part of the boy, for his employment was illegal on account of him being under age," the decision reads.

Legislature Called To Back Sulzer Foes

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Hurry calls were sent to all the State Assemblymen to-day to return here at once. Their presence was desired so that if the Sulzer Court of Impeachment refused to amend article four of the constitution against the Governor, the Board of Managers could at once present the matter to the Assembly.

Every Tammany vote was ordered to be on the ground as soon as possible.

Wilson Unable to Stop Here on Tour

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Senator Hoke Smith and Senator Bacon, of Georgia, called on President Wilson to-day and presented to him the invitation of the Governor of Georgia and the Mayor and Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta to stop in Atlanta on his trip to Mobile.

The President answered that he is going on a special train, the itinerary of which is made up, and he would be unable to stop here.

However, he intends to visit Atlanta later.

Runaway Atlanta
Wife Found in Macon

MACON, Oct. 15.—H. J. Taylor, an Atlanta machanic, came here to-day in pursuit of his wife, who ran away from home this week with Cecil Laury, of Atlanta.

The wife, Mrs. Bertha Taylor, an attractive young woman, and Laury were located at a boarding house. Taylor wanted only the children, he said, and when Mrs. Taylor refused to surrender them, Taylor said out with a brass knuckle.

Grant Park's Needs
Before Board Again

Plans of the Park Board to rebuild the burned refreshment stand in Grant Park, which were killed at the last meeting by the vehement protests of Mayor Woodward, will be again taken up at a special meeting of the board Wednesday afternoon.

Mayor Woodward is expected again to present. He says he will not stand for any moral obligation contracts, the only means by which the board can erect the building.

Woman Afraid to Tell About Shooting

A pistol exploded in the home of A. E. Satterfield, a cotton mill employee, at 41 Carroll street, Wednesday, Oct. 15, and the woman who lives there from the house she was badly bruised. To neighbors she declared: "If I tell anything about it, he will kill me."

Satterfield was arrested. He declared the pistol exploded accidentally.

Rural Check Record
For Atlanta Broken

Clearing in the "country check" department of the Atlanta Clearing House Monday were larger than for any previous day in the history of the department according to unofficial reports among the bankers Wednesday, who say the sum was in excess of $1,000,000.

The reason is the lively movement of the cotton crop.

Chemist Finds No Evidence of Crime—Slaying Charge To Be Dropped at Once.

The Barron poison mystery which had aroused three counties collapsed Wednesday with the reading of the report of Dr. Edgar Evershart, the Atlanta chemist, which stated that no poison was found in the stomach or other organs of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron.

Dr. Cary Barron, husband of the woman, who has been under arrest at Miller pending the analysis, will be released immediately, and the entire matter dropped.

The following dispatch from Miller, where the chemist's report was read, tells the story of the culmination of a sensation which has stirred Henry, Spalding and Pike Counties.

Train Kills Boy on His Way to School; Chum Sees Tragedy

Thomas Jackson Harris, an 11-year-old schoolboy living with his parents on the McDonough road near the Federal prison, was killed by a Southern passenger train Wednesday at Sawville's crossing.

The boy left home with his two brothers to go to the Lakeside Heights School. As a northbound freight train approached the crossing he ran ahead of his brothers and crossed the track. Standing on the track used by southbound trains, he was watching the freight pass and failed to see the passenger train which struck him.

The engine made every effort to stop the train and after the accident took the body of the boy and backed the train to Hammond station.

Conductor Donohue investigated the accident. There being eye-witnesses, an inquest will be held.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, FREE MAN ONCE AGAIN

Julian Hawthorne, the novelist, a free man Wednesday, after serving a term in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, told a startling story of his life as a convict, in which he called the Atlanta prison a "living hell," and said Warden Moyer was "unfit."

With all the emphasis at his command, Hawthorne arraigned conditions in the penitentiary as repulsive, cruel, and the equal of the most lurid descriptions in fiction.

"They are starving men in the name of economy," he said.

And Dr. W. J. Morton, of New York, his friend and fellow prisoner, nodded his head in corroboration.

"Prisoners are subjected to treatment that is nothing more than slow murder," said Dr. Morton, who is a practicing physician. "There is never enough to eat. The warden attempts to feed strong men on 9 cents a day, and when he succeeds he brags about it."

In the short time they remained in Atlanta after their release, Hawthorne and Dr. Morton talked much of conditions at the penitentiary, jumping from one detail to the other with a dramatic swiftness that made the story harrowing.

"Oh, yes, you hear of the clean cells in which the prisoners sleep," said Hawthorne. "But you never hear of the 'hole,' do you? For the slightest fault, sometimes for breaking a plate, sometimes for a little more or less, a prisoner is sent to the 'hole,' a place under the main building for solitary confinement.

"There the heat is terrific at times, and the stench is bad. There some prisoners are chained by their wrists, and held there with arms outstretched for hours. And sometimes, confinement in the 'hole' is for days."

Scores Prison Fare.

"But the element of hell is in the feeding," he continued, his eyes flashing. "There has never a man gone into the prison but who undergoes a steady deterioration, maybe slow, but always sure. The doctor will tell you that."

He waved at Dr. Morton, who nodded acquiescence.

"Men are put in prison to be cared for," said Dr. Morton, "not to be subjected to slow murder."

The two accepted the invitation of a Georgian reporter to ride the Atlanta. But once in the automobile, they forgot the city, and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and vowed vengeance on the system which he described.

And the treatment is always that of brute or criminal," he went on. "There are always the guards and the rifles, giving the people the impression that the men in prison are wild men, or desperadoes. And now and then men are clubbed for little or nothing. There is a guard named Dean whom I have seen strike a prisoner over the head, and force no justifiable offense."

Escaped Harsh Treatment.

The reporter wondered if Hawthorne himself had come in for such treatment and asked him:

"No," said the novelist. "I have nothing at which to complain as to my treatment. But Dr. Morton and I were given prison work, and were well treated otherwise. But there is

INJOINED

The regrading and repaving of Whitehall street between 15th and Trinity avenue, involving the expenditure of approximately $15,000, was held off Wednesday morning for the filing of a sensational petition for injunction by W. L. Kelley, proprietor of the Kelley company at 119 Whitehall street.

Judge Bell issued an order restraining the city and county from proceeding with the work pending a hearing next Saturday.

Mr. Kelley makes charges that the city officials deliberately framed a resolution ordering the work which is "intended to defraud the taxpayers," and which is "a fraud and a device practiced upon taxpayers wherein the city of Atlanta is illegally borrowing money."

The County Commissioners, he also charges, are threatening in one of the Fulton County, which are leased for other purposes, in furthering and carrying out the illegal contract.

According to the petition, the resolution adopted by the city and county in the county authorities provided that the property owners should pay into the city treasury the sum of $75,000, which is the difference between the estimated cost of the improvement, and that this has never been paid, and further that it is not a payment but a loan, which is held to be illegal on the grounds that the City of Atlanta is without authority to contract such a debt.

The resolution is so framed, the petitioner says, "and the silence is so acute in said resolution with reference to requirement of some that the drawing of the resolution was intended to defraud."

Underwood Has Fact Exposed From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Reports by way of Wall street that the United States cruiser Tacoma had been blown up at Vera Cruz, Mexico, were received, but not credited at the Navy Department yesterday. The vessel's captain reported her arrival at Vera Cruz yesterday, but no message from the ship has been received since then.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 15.—The Tennessee Railroad Commission and Nashville Railroad authorities to appear before it in Nashville October 27 to show cause why it should not put on a 2-12-cent passenger rate in Tennessee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Aviator Anthony Jannus and a passenger, E. B. Hall, were seriously hurt this afternoon while they were seeking some trace of Arthur J. Javeli, the aviator who had been missing since Monday. Their machine caught fire while they were 600 feet in the air, but Jannus ejected the machine down 500 feet. Then it turned turtle. It fell into a marshy ground.

WHEATON, ILL., Oct. 15.—Henry Spencer, the "lawn teacher-slayer," refused to accept counsel for his defense before the grand jury before Judge Maxwell. He was before Judge Maxwell yesterday for the murder of Mrs. M. L. Allen, a woman who was killed by a bullet from a .38-caliber revolver.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 15.—The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in a special train, left for the city this afternoon. The train was composed of a Pullman sleeping car, a Pullman dining car, a Pullman baggage car, and a Pullman engine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Officials of the New York baseball club today said that they had received information from a reliable source that the club had been offered a $100,000 loan by a man who had been in the city for some time.

GLASGOW, Oct. 15.—Women pelted the preceding magistrate with stones and other missiles. The women were protesting against the magistrate's decision to allow a woman to work in a factory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The House of Representatives today passed a bill to amend the act relating to the collection of duties on imports.

BALTIMORE, MD., Oct. 15.—It was learned today that Henry Clay, a member of the Democratic party in his state, elected in the neighborhood of 75,000 in the city of Baltimore.

passed an envelope to the bride containing, it is said, a check for $2,000,000.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The high court of impeachment, in the trial of Governor William B. Ewald, this afternoon decided that articles of impeachment should be broad enough to cover the testimony given by Henry B. Ewald and Duncan W. Pack. On that ground the court refused to admit the articles of impeachment.

DRESDEN, Oct. 15.—The police today nipped in the bud a plot to assassinate the king of Saxony and Grand Duke Cyril of Russia. A man supposed to be a German had engaged a room next to the suite in the hotel where the royal party was expected today.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Daniel Remington, 70 years old, tried to sue President Wilson today, saying that the latter had taken $500,000 of his money, locked up in a desk. Remington, who says he is from South Dakota, was arrested by the White House police and sent to the Washington Asylum Hospital.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Oct. 15.—While on route across American territory from Piedras Blancas to Nuevo Laredo, Joaquin M. Garcia, Mexican Federal general, was arrested here today by United States authorities. Garcia was riding in a special train when he was apprehended by the authorities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—"Big Jack" Tamm, the "Outlaw" twister of the Giants, whose spitfire failed to deliver a home run in the world series, signed another contract today to play for the New York Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The marriage of the daughter of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to a young man, was announced today. The bride is the daughter of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the groom is a young man.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The House of Representatives today passed a bill to amend the act relating to the collection of duties on imports.

BALTIMORE, MD., Oct. 15.—It was learned today that Henry Clay, a member of the Democratic party in his state, elected in the neighborhood of 75,000 in the city of Baltimore.

Man Held on Suspicion in Slaying of Girl in Thomaston Hotel Freed.

THOMASTON, Oct. 15.—An autopsy performed this afternoon at the instance of Pinkerton detectives revealed a bullet in the back of Dorothy Haug's head. Immediately after the autopsy the body was sent to Knoxville, Tenn., the Haug family home, where interment will take place probably Thursday afternoon.

THOMASTON, Oct. 15.—Mrs. and Miss Thomas Haug, parents of the slain stenographer, and her younger sister, Marjorie, accompanied the body to Knoxville, Tenn.

The detectives went on the case today. It was reported today that a negro had been seen a young woman going to the postoffice about 4 o'clock Monday morning, and had passed her again shortly before Miss Haug was found dead at her hotel. This, however, has not been verified.

A post-mortem examination of the body of Miss Haug was made just before her funeral. This examination showed all vital organs of the slain girl in normal condition.

With the release of J. W. Duane, arrested Tuesday on suspicion, who convinced the police that he had no connection with the murder, the slaying is now a mystery to-day as to two days ago.

Thus far there is absolutely no tangible clue to the identity of the slayer, and the police and coroner are at a loss to know which way to turn to clear the mystery.

The coroner's jury today continued the investigation of the murder which was resumed on Tuesday after a verdict had been reached by a jury of twelve men.

The bloody footprint and blood-stained towel found in Duane's room at the Southern Hotel, where the murder took place, were explained by a servant girl, who said she had gone into Duane's room for a towel at the request of the physician.

She said that later she returned the towel to Duane's room, the footprint being due to blood that had dripped on to the floor from Miss Haug's bed.

No murder ever committed in Thomaston has aroused the indignation and sympathy of the people as that of Dorothy Haug.

Last year Miss Haug and her younger sister, Marjorie, came to Thomaston with their mother, who was traveling in the interest of a publishing house, making this city her headquarters for this territory.

When Miss Haug returned from a summer visit that she made with her mother and sister to Vermont, her mother's home state, she accepted a position with the Citizens Bank, of Valdosta, which she had held for about a year.

Last year Miss Haug and her younger sister, Marjorie, came to Thomaston with their mother, who was traveling in the interest of a publishing house, making this city her headquarters for this territory.

When Miss Haug returned from a summer visit that she made with her mother and sister to Vermont, her mother's home state, she accepted a position with the Citizens Bank, of Valdosta, which she had held for about a year.

Man Held on Suspicion in Slaying of Girl in Thomaston Hotel Freed.

THOMASTON, Oct. 15.—An autopsy performed this afternoon at the instance of Pinkerton detectives revealed a bullet in the back of Dorothy Haug's head. Immediately after the autopsy the body was sent to Knoxville, Tenn., the Haug family home, where interment will take place probably Thursday afternoon.

THOMASTON, Oct. 15.—Mrs. and Miss Thomas Haug, parents of the slain stenographer, and her younger sister, Marjorie, accompanied the body to Knoxville, Tenn.

The detectives went on the case today. It was reported today that a negro had been seen a young woman going to the postoffice about 4 o'clock Monday morning, and had passed her again shortly before Miss Haug was found dead at her hotel. This, however, has not been verified.

A post-mortem examination of the body of Miss Haug was made just before her funeral. This examination showed all vital organs of the slain girl in normal condition.

With the release of J. W. Duane, arrested Tuesday on suspicion, who convinced the police that he had no connection with the murder, the slaying is now a mystery to-day as to two days ago.

Thus far there is absolutely no tangible clue to the identity of the slayer, and the police and coroner are at a loss to know which way to turn to clear the mystery.

The coroner's jury today continued the investigation of the murder which was resumed on Tuesday after a verdict had been reached by a jury of twelve men.

The bloody footprint and blood-stained towel found in Duane's room at the Southern Hotel, where the murder took place, were explained by a servant girl, who said she had gone into Duane's room for a towel at the request of the physician.

She said that later she returned the towel to Duane's room, the footprint being due to blood that had dripped on to the floor from Miss Haug's bed.

No murder ever committed in Thomaston has aroused the indignation and sympathy of the people as that of Dorothy Haug.

Why Your Electric and Gas Light Bills Vary

Consider the Chart for One Minute and You Will Understand Why Your Gas Bills Are Higher in Fall and Winter Than They Are in Spring and Summer

You Use Electric and Gas Light Nearly Three Times as Long in December as You Do in June

This chart divides the 24 hours of a day into three periods—the period of sleep, the period of using Artificial Light and the period of daylight. In June, the average use of Artificial Light in Residences is 2.55-100 hours per day. In December, the average use of Artificial Light in Residences is 6.65-100 hours per day. Therefore, the average use of Electric and Gas Light in the Home is nearly three times as great in December as in June.

Prosperity Sale: Share in Our Profits

Prosperity smiles upon Georgia. The "Horn of Plenty" pours out rich treasures of the soil. We are blessed with bountiful crops at bumper prices.

Mr. Robert Maddox, in The American, estimates that COTTON alone will bring two hundred millions of dollars. $200,000,000 into the state. Moreover, we have raised our greatest crop. Farmers are learning to diversify. Seed merchants say they have sold more grain and grain for seed than ever before. Georgia can grow other things besides cotton - and is doing it.

In Atlanta property bank clearings are the highest on record. Bank deposits show a tremendous gain. Though there were more building permits taken out in 1912, there is much more actual building being done in 1913. And several sky-scrapers are projected.

Atlanta optimistically looks forward to her greatest period of prosperity.

What has all this to do with merchandise and you? Just this: M. Rich & Bros. Co. prosper as Georgia, Atlanta and you prosper. Since our business relations are interdependent, we propose to let you share our prosperity through this great

Prosperity Sale: Wherein We Share Our Profits With You

The sale opened to-day with upward of 200 well selected bargains. On each of them we have foregone our profits. Many of them we can sell below regular cost, because manufacturers have sold us in special lots underprice for this sale. Every department contributes to this sale - it is the greatest opportunity you have ever had to get reasonable goods this early in the season at such low prices. We list a few of the items that are attracting the crowds:

Younger Fox

By Ed W. Smith
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Wolgast, the veteran boxer, was defeated by the younger and more powerful Nelson in a fight which was one of the most interesting of the season. Nelson, who is only 24 years old, was a real fighter, and his victory was a real one. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

Wolgast, 30, and Nelson, 24, fought a hard battle, but Nelson was the better man. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

ALMOST from the start of the fight, Nelson was the better man. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

Before the fight, Nelson was the better man. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

NELSON'S victory was a real one. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

As early as the end of the first round, Nelson was the better man. He was not just a lucky puncher, but a real fighter, and his victory was a real one.

FEW INJURIES NOW HAMPER TECH SQUAD

TECH Yellow Jackets came through the game with Chattanooga in pretty good condition, the only injury being to Patton, who was hurt by a tackle and a kick. The rest of the team was in good shape, and they were able to play the game to a draw.

"Sweethearts, Wives and Good Fellows"

The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consumed under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SOONER THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that Atlanta STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERTS BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that.

Atlanta must get the limit in the effort, at least! Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eyes on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

The smoke we have with us always—or have had, thus far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so everlastingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor. AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUOUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston
By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

When the Revolution was over, the British evacuated the city of Boston. It was a day of triumph for the patriots, and a day of sorrow for the British. The British had been in the city for over a year, and during that time they had done much to destroy the city. They had burned the city hall, the state house, and many other buildings. They had also killed many of the patriots. The patriots, on the other hand, had been successful in driving the British out of the city. They had won the battle of Bunker's Hill, and they had forced the British to evacuate the city. The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet above sea level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their road near the foot of the mountain by the driving storm. They had been driven from their road near the foot of the mountain by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, avoiding the limitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately warmed into the warm huts in thousands and even flew into the bed chambers of the monks, who welcomed them there with a hearty welcome.

They were fed and lodged for the night, and the next morning when the doors and windows were opened again a host of warm sun-shine, the birds, partly, and we may suppose, chiefly, with a multitudes, fluttering of wings, took their departure toward the south, quickly descending into the genial atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went forth and the next fall, some, and with heavy hearts, found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had sought shelter, being unable to find their way, and then they were, with their comrades, into the hospitable huts of the monastery.

This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the most mysterious of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discern the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

Long observation has shown that there exist well-marked tracks which these migrating birds follow year after year on their way both to the south in autumn and back to the north in spring. They go in immense flocks, travel thousands of miles, and only a jelling form can drive them from their path. After generations the birds take the same invisible way through the air. Many of them fly at night, and evidently they have landmarks to guide them. When an aviator starts in his aeroplanes on a long voyage he has on a pivoted board before him a map of the country that he intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way.

Even with his map he often becomes lost, when darkness comes the land. The birds have no map, but they do not lose their way. They know the mountains and plains, and the points of the compass better than we do.

Sometimes they may lose their way for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will occasionally rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course, there is no hesitation. They are not troubled, like the mariner, who looks back with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometer, and their inherent sense expresses the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac.

There are spots on the earth which are the great rendezvous for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There is a flock of birds, some of which are called "the Rock of Gibraltar," which travel thousands of miles, and only a jelling form can drive them from their path. After generations the birds take the same invisible way through the air. Many of them fly at night, and evidently

After generations the birds take the same invisible way through the air. Many of them fly at night, and evidently show, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great rendezvous, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flowery gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and etailed.

The Hopbush is another center of bird routes. They come from Germany, Austria and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi Valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far through the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many warblers landed of uttering England for the winter would the frosty months, slumber for the winter months, and sheltered spots, and even buried in mud.

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Lord Dunsley, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderingly about the X-rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery."

But how insignificant is our notion with the achievement that the future birds in store for us when better instructed in the ways of things, and supplementing by art the feebleness of our senses, we shall reach, however imperfectly, the wonderful equanimity of wild and tame.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on Protecting Birds

Boys Should Be Taught Not to Shoot Them, and Schools and Mothers Should Combine to This End.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

DEAR FRIEND: "Please permit me to call your attention to a great and serious evil now menacing our insect-eating birds. Millions of small birds in migration are destroyed yearly by the people of the Southern States and used as food. This destruction, now increasing, is having serious effect on the numbers of song birds in the North. Negroes are armed with guns, and many are content to rob the birds of their food. It is only recently that little birds were sold in large quantities in New York City, and they are still sold to thousands in the South.

The Audubon societies, which have already checked the killing of native birds for military purposes, now propose to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. This is a stupendous task. It must be done by educating the public through the schools, the press and the clergy, and by securing better laws and BETTER ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS now on the statute books. The scarcity of robins, bluebirds and helminths is becoming noticeable over wide areas. Will you not help us to the best of your ability to stop the slaughter of birds which is now depleting our fields and woods of feathered songsters? A word of encouragement will be appreciated. Yours sincerely, T. GILBERT PEARSON, "Secretary."

This letter ought to reach the heart and the brain of every man, woman and child.

And some of common sense and common sensibility in our land. It ought to reach the hearts of mothers of young sons who have arrived at an age when they want to express their manly qualities by using a gun.

At nine is only a degree less menacing in the hands of young boys than in the hands of grown men.

Every year distressing accidents are reported in the daily press from the use of these "toys" by boys. Unconscious are blinded or crippled, and the previous lives of beautiful birds are sacrificed, while the killing instinct in growing children is cultivated and fostered.

All because women believe themselves to be "good mothers," and consider they are cultivating the manliness in their little boys by providing them with guns for amusement.

Meanwhile, if the mother began as soon as her little boy could talk, or understand, to awaken in his heart a love and sympathy for birds and beasts, and if she then stipulated that his gun practice should consist wholly in target shooting under proper guidance and instruction, her boy would grow up skilled as a good marksman and yet humane and kindly in his instincts.

Every man should know how to use a gun and revolver. There are occasions when such knowledge is important. But there is no part of a youth's education which needs a more careful and wise preparation and guidance, than this.

Not one boy in a thousand receives this preparation and guidance.

The average boy teases for a gun, and receives it as a birthday or Christmas gift, and proceeds to use it after being told in the "careful" by the "loving parent," who crosses away and leaves him to his amusement.

At one of the resorts not far from the city, a woman made her self unpopular with her neighbors (mothers of sons of the resort) by telling the boys they must not aim at or shoot birds that are wild on her grounds. Her action was considered unbecomingly as her words of advice to the boys in such a bird love and learn kindness were considered impertinent.

There is nothing our public schools need more than to include this education which the Audubon Society offers in the school courses. If you, dear madam, permit these lines, want to help make this beautiful world more beautiful and less sad, if you want to aid in forming higher ideals in your children, in the rising generation, in ordering or training your autumn hat try and use good common sense, and a little individual taste, and wear a hat which is becoming and beautiful and entirely devoid of any part of a dead bird. Plumes from the ostrich do not mean the destruction of the bird, for the ostrich is a robust bird and the plumes grow while the ostrich exists, just as the goose grows new down each year. But beside plumes, there are exquisite grasses and flowers, and laces and jets, and violets and ribbons and other trimmings which can make headgear attractive.

Use your good taste and ask your mother to show some original ideas in building you a hat.

Remember the ostrich and a egret mean the death and torture of the mother birds, and the starvation of their young as a rule. Any refined woman should be ashamed to be seen wearing a plumed hat. Sun glass and preserved grasses and ferns produce quite as artistic effects.

Help the Audubon Society save birds.

The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consummated under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SMOKE THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that Atlanta STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERVE BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that.

Atlanta must go the limit in the effort, at least! Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eye on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

The smoke we have with us always—or have had, thus far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so overwhelmingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor. AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUOUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

WHEN 145,000 men, the two regiments of British regulars landed at Boston, it was written down in the Book of Fate that the War of the Revolution was on. To be sure, the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air. But the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air. But the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air.

The ability of men, no less than the phenomena of the material world, are determined by law. Something happens—and then, in consequence of that something, something else happens. It is quite possible that but for the setting of the red coats the Cause of St. George would today be serving over the whole of the North Atlantic continent. It was the King's attempt to answer the reasonable arguments of the colonists with cannon and musketry that made the breach permanent and the separation inevitable. It was the way that had been popular for countless ages, the way by which despots had been settling things from the beginning of history, and the situation, for it has turned out that the revolution was not a new thing, but a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and he blindly submitted on to his doom.

As Americans, the proud citizens of the world's greatest and noblest nation, we are very glad that the regulars came to Boston, for it has turned out that the revolution was not a new thing, but a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and he blindly submitted on to his doom.

The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 3,000 feet above sea-level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their road near the beginning of their annual migration toward the summer lands on the south of the great mountains. Probably they had been confused, by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, accepting the invitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately swarmed into the warm halls by thousands, and even flew into the bedrooms of the monks, who welcomed them freely wherever they chose to go.

They were fed and lodged for the night, and the next morning when the doors and windows were opened amid a burst of warm sunshine, the birds joyfully, and we may suppose thankfully, with a multitudinous fluttering of wings, took their departure toward the south, quickly dissolving into the genial atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went amid the newly fallen snow, and with heavy hearts, found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had perished, being unable in the blinding storm to find their way, with their comrades, into the hospitable shelter of the monastery. This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the great mysteries of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discover the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

Long observation has shown that there exist well-marked tracks which these migrating birds follow year after year on their way both to the south in autumn and back to the north in spring. They go in immense flocks, travel thousands of miles, and only a few of their aerial wanderers, after generation after generation, take the same invisible ways through the air. Many of them fly at great heights, and evidently they have landmarks to guide them. When an aviator starts in his aeroplane on a long voyage he has on a pivoted board before him a map of the country that he intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way. Even with his map he often becomes helpless when darkness covers the land. The birds have no maps, but night can not lead them astray. They must possess a topographic, or geographic, sense superior to ours. They know the mountains and plains and the points of the compass better than we do.

Sometimes they way lies for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will, occasionally, rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course there is no hesitation. They are not troubled like the mariner, who looks with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometers, and their inborn sense exceeds the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac.

There are spots on the earth which are like great crossroads for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There the routes of the birds come to a focus. Before they transit the straits to spread over Africa, the winged invaders take the famous cable-fortress-rock by storm. From north, northeast, northwest, they swoop after the constant line of land lying on the Mediterranean shore, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great caravansary, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flower gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and island.

The Bosphorus is another center of bird roads. They come from Germany, Austria, and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi Valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic Coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far through the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many swallows instead of quitting England for the winter passed the frosty months slumbering, like hibernating animals, in sheltered spots, and even buried in mud!

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Henri Fabre, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderingly about the X-rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery!"

But how insignificant in comparison with the astonishment that the future holds in store for us when better instructed in the ways of things and supplementing by art the feebleness of our senses, we shall rival, however imperfectly, the seasonal antennae of wild animals.

"D"EAR FRIEND:

Please permit me to call your attention to a great and serious evil now menacing our insect-eating birds. Millions of small birds in migration are destroyed yearly by the people of the Southern States and used as food. This destruction, now increasing, is having serious effect on the numbers of song birds in the North. Negroes are armed with guns, and many are proficient in other means of destruction. (In the North, also, large numbers of foreign laborers coming from Europe kill small birds for food. It is only recently that little birds were sold in large quantities in New York City, and they are still sold by thousands in the South.)

The Audubon societies, which have already checked the killing of native birds for military purposes, now propose to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. This is a stupendous task. It must be done by educating the public through the schools, the press and the clergy, and by securing better laws and better enforcement of THE LAWS now on the statute books. The society of robbers, blasphemers and boobies is becoming noticeable over wide areas. Will you not help us to the best of your ability to stop the slaughter which is now depopulating our fields and woods of feathered songsters? A word of encouragement will be appreciated.

Yours sincerely,
"T. GILBERT PEARSON,"
Secretary.

This letter ought to reach the heart and the brain of every man and woman of common sense and common sensibility in our land.

It ought to reach the hearts of mothers of young sons who have arrived at an age where they want

Not one boy in a thousand receives this preparation and guidance.

The average boy teases for a gun, and receives it as a birthday or Christmas gift, and proceeds to use it after being told to "be careful" by the "loving parent," who goes away and leaves him to his amusement.

At one of the resorts not far from the city, a woman made herself unpopular with her neighbors (mothers of sons of the same age), by telling the boys they must not aim at or shoot birds of any kind on her grounds. Her action was considered unneighborly and her words of advice to the boys to study bird lore and learn kindness were considered impertinent.

There is nothing our public schools need more than to include this education which the Audubon Society offers in the school courses. If you, dear madam, who peruse these lines, want to help make this beautiful world more beautiful and less sad, if you want to aid in forming higher ideals and kinder instincts in the rising generation, in ordering or framing your autumn list try and use good common sense, and a little individual taste, and wear a hat which is becoming and beautiful and entirely devoid of any part of a dead bird. Plumes from the ostrich do not mean the destruction of that bird, for the ostrich is a robust fowl and the plumes grow with the ostrich exists, just as the goose grows new down each year. But bodice plumes, there are exquisite grasses and flowers, and leaves and jets, and velvets and ribbons and other trimmings which can make headgear attractive.

Use your good taste and ask your milliner to show some original ideas in building you a hat.

Remember the orange and silverette mean the death and torture of the mother birds, and the starvation of their young as a result.

Any refined woman should be ashamed to be seen wearing a silverette. Span laws and preserved grasses and ferns produce quite as artistic effects.

Help the Audubon Society save birds.

Stars and Stripes

Don't hear of any one cutting the price of Stars and Stripes since the tariff was lowered.

Arkansas compels citizens to give five dollars to college for every child. What a beautiful scheme!

Who wants a decorated cross?

Who who passed a "Cleveland" firm has been sent to college by the government. Doubt if the beneficiary is constitutional.

There are occasions when such knowledge is important.

But there is no part of a youth's education which needs a more careful and wise preparation, and guidance, than this.

Every man should know how to use a gun and revolver.
